By making friends with Chile's greatest literary critic, Farewell, and then by meeting such literary greats as Neruda, Urrutia gives up most of the theological imperatives towards justice and service that his profession requires and, instead, focuses his energy on art, poetry, and literary criticism.

Essay Writer Roberto Bolaño's novel By Night in Chile itself is almost a parody of the "confessional narrative" style that Idelber Avelar accuses of having met its "historical limit" in his book The Untimely Present: Postdictatorial Latin American Fiction.
